it Consult releases the new, revolutionary version of its josh platform

Urbino, January 13, 2014 – josh 6: this is the new, revolutionary release of the Organization Intelligence, Business Process and Document Management platform produced and distributed by it Consult.

This version opens new scenarios for using and automating organization processes, also in previously unexplored areas. In fact, the product has been totally reconceived and redesigned; it is oriented towards user experience through the new html5 interfaces which guarantee full usability on all mobile devices, whether smart phones or tablets.

The introduction of corporate and personal calendars which enable effort as well as elapsed management, the expansion of the permission governance functions with very broad and flexible levels of granularity and many new additional functions meet the needs expressed by many of it Consult's enterprise clients, it also offers complete integration with Microsoft SharePoint, supported in 3 versions (2013, 2010 and 2007).

"It is the completion of a process started in 2012 and developed with passion and dedication by the entire company" states the managing director of it Consult, Giovanni Marrè. "The objectives were clear: increasing orientation towards business users, a focus on look&feel and usability, internet, cloud and independence with regard to the device on which the product is used".

josh 6 will be launched through a series of appointments dedicated to our most important clients and to our channel of partners, with particular regard for the early adopters.
